COMPLAINT

Plaintiff, Landon Allen, by his attorneys, Loevy & Loevy, hereby complains against the Defendants, City of Chicago, former Chicago Police Sergeant Ronald Watts, former Chicago Police Officer Kallatt Mohammed, Sergeant Alvin Jones, Officer Gerome Summers, Officer Calvin Ridgell, Philip Cline, Karen Rowan, Debra Kirby, and other as-yet-unidentified officers of the Chicago Police Department, and states as follows:

Introduction

1. Landon Allen was taken into custody and convicted for a crime he did not commit.

2. The crime never happened; it was completely fabricated by Chicago police officers.

3. Mr. Allen was arrested on January 29, 2004.

4. Mr. Allen's arrest occurred at the Ida B. Wells housing complex, a location that was heavily policed by corrupt Chicago police officers.

5. The corrupt officers sought bribes, planted drugs, and falsely accused many people, including Mr. Allen, of possessing drugs.

6. The type of encounter these police officers had with Mr. Allen was unfortunately quite common, and the consequences were dire: false arrests, criminal proceedings, incarcerations, and a subsequent felony record.

7. Realizing that he faced no chance of winning at trial, Mr. Allen eventually pled guilty to this false arrest.

8. Mr. Allen was sentenced to probation.

9. After Mr. Allen had completed his sentence of probation, Defendants Watts and Mohammed were caught on tape engaging in the exact type of misconduct that Mr. Allen had alleged against them.

10. The federal government charged Watts and Mohammed criminally, and the disgraced officers pled guilty and served time in federal prison.

11. Since then, evidence has come to light showing that Watts and his police team members engaged in a pattern of criminal misconduct against public housing residents and visitors, and the Chicago Police Department officials have long known about that pattern.

12. The scope of this misconduct cannot be overstated.

13. For example, the Chief Justice of Illinois's Court of Claims has written that "many individuals were wrongfully convicted as a result of one of the most staggering cases of police corruption in the history of the City of Chicago," explaining that "Watts and his team of police officers ran what can only be described as a criminal enterprise right out of the movie 'Training Day.'"

14. The Court of Claims Chief Justice explained that "[o]n many occasions when these residents [of public housing] refused to pay the extortionate demands the Watts crew would fabricate drug charges against them."

15. The Illinois Appellate Court, too, has weighed in on the scope of the scandal, repeatedly calling Watts and his team "corrupt police officers" and "criminals" and chastising the City's police disciplinary oversight body for doing "nothing to slow down the criminals" from their rampant misconduct and perjury.

16. On or around November 16, 2017, the Cook County State's Attorney Office (CCSAO) successfully moved to vacate the convictions of 15 individuals framed by the Watts outfit.

17. In light of the decision of the CCSAO, and recognizing the scope of misconduct that the City let go on for more than a decade unabated, many of the Watts crew were placed on desk duty.

18. Since then, three additional groups of victims were exonerated en masse on September 24, 2018 (including Mr. Allen's conviction), November 2, 2018, and in February of 2019, respectively.

19. In recognition of the scope of their misconduct, the CSSAO will no longer call many of the Watts crew members as witnesses "due to concerns about [their] credibility and alleged involvement in the misconduct of Sergeant Watts."

20. Through this lawsuit, Mr. Allen seeks accountability and compensation for being deprived of his liberty as a result of Defendants' misconduct.

Jurisdiction and Venue

21. This action is brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 to redress the deprivation under color of law of Plaintiff's rights as secured by the United States Constitution.

22. This Court has jurisdiction over federal claims pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 and state law claims pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1337.

23. Venue is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b). Plaintiff resides in this judicial district and Defendant City of Chicago is a municipal corporation located here. Additionally, the events giving rise to the claims asserted herein occurred within this judicial district.

The Parties

24. Landon Allen is a 44-year-old man who currently resides in Chicago, Illinois.

25. At all times relevant to this complaint, Defendants Ronald Watts, Kallatt Mohammed, Alvin Jones, Gerome Summers, and Calvin Ridgell were police officers employed by the City of Chicago and acting within the scope of their employment and under the color of law. Collectively, these individual Defendants are referred to as Defendant Officers.

26. At all relevant times, Defendant Watts was a leader of the Second District Tactical Team that worked the Ida B. Wells housing complex.

27. At all times relevant, Defendants Mohammed, Jones, Summers, and Ridgell worked on Watts's tactical team.

28. At all relevant times, Defendant Phillip J. Cline was the Superintendent of the Chicago Police Department.

29. At all relevant times, Defendants Debra Kirby and Karen Rowan were Assistant Deputy Superintendents of the Chicago Police Department, acting as the heads of its Internal Affairs Division (IAD).

Collectively, Kirby, Rowan, and Defendant Cline, are referred to as Defendant Supervisory Officers.

30. The Defendant City of Chicago is a municipal corporation under the laws of the State of Illinois. The City operates the Chicago Police Department (CPD). The City is responsible for the policies, practices, and customs of the City and CPD.

Factual Background

31. During the 2000s, Mr. Allen frequently visited the Chicago Housing Authority's Ida B. Wells housing complex to spend time with one of his friends, Erica Hill.

32. Defendant Watts and his tactical team members were known to Mr. Allen and the residents of the Ida B. Wells area.

33. Defendant Watts and his tactical team members maintained a visible presence in the Ida B. Wells area. The Watts team had a reputation in the community for harassing, intimidating and fabricating criminal charges against the area's residents and visitors.

34. The Watts team's pattern of harassment continued with Mr. Allen.

Mr. Allen is Framed on January 29, 2004

35. On January 29, 2004, Mr. Allen was going to visit a friend, Erica Hill, at Ida B. Wells. Mr. Allen drove to Ida B. Wells.

36. Mr. Allen did not have any drugs or any contraband on him or in the vehicle.

37. Mr. Allen parked his car in the Ida B. Wells parking lot and approached the back entrance of the housing complex.

38. As Mr. Allen approached his friend's apartment, he proceeded through the yard area. A group of plain-clothed officers stood in the yard.

39. Suddenly, Defendant Ridgell grabbed Mr. Allen and pushed him against the wall.

40. Mr. Allen noticed other people handcuffed and lined up on the wall as well.

41. Defendant Ridgell searched Mr. Allen.

42. Nothing illegal was found on Mr. Allen's person.

43. Defendant Ridgell got on his radio and mentioned the name "Sergeant Watts."

44. The Defendant Officers continued to detain Mr. Allen until Defendant Watts arrived.

45. The Defendant Officers held Mr. Allen in custody as Defendant Ridgell walked over to speak to Defendant Watts. Defendant Ridgell returned to Mr. Allen and informed him that he was under arrest.

46. Mr. Allen asked Defendant Ridgell why he was being arrested.

47. Defendant Ridgell then planted a zip-lock baggie of drugs on Mr. Allen.

48. The Defendant Officers stole Mr. Allen's money as well.

49. Mr. Allen was falsely arrested, taken to the Area 2 Police Station located at 51st and Wentworth and was eventually charged with drug crimes.

Mr. Allen's Prosecution for the 2004 Arrest

50. The Defendant Officers prepared a false and fabricated police report related to this arrest.

51. On the basis of the false report, Mr. Allen was prosecuted for drug crimes.

52. Even though Mr. Allen was innocent, knowing that he risked significant time in prison if he went to trial and lost, Mr. Allen accepted a plea deal.

53. Mr. Allen was sentenced to a term of probation.

54. Defendant Officers never disclosed to the prosecutors that they had fabricated evidence and falsified a police report related to Mr. Allen's arrest.

55. Defendant Officers never disclosed to the prosecutors any of their misconduct described herein. If the prosecutors had known that Defendant Officers fabricated evidence and committed the other misconduct described herein, they would not have pursued the prosecution of Mr. Allen, and his unlawful deprivation of liberty would not have been continued.

56. Given that the entirety of the State's case against Mr. Allen rested on Defendant Officers' fabrication of evidence—the planted drugs—and the credibility of Defendant Officers, the exculpatory evidence described in the preceding paragraphs would have been material to Mr. Allen's defense of his criminal charges.

57. Mr. Allen was forced to undergo years of probation, which included a curfew, being subject to frequent drug testing, and having to regularly travel to visit his probation officer.

Defendant Watts and His Team Engaged in a Pattern of Misconduct for at Least a Decade, All Facilitated by the City's Code of Silence

58. It was no secret within CPD that Watts and his crew engaged in the type of misconduct that Mr. Allen accuses them of.

59. Government officials, including those with the City of Chicago, knew about Watts and his crew's alleged misconduct as early as 1999.

60. Shortly thereafter, an FBI investigation of Watts and his crew was underway. The FBI investigation took place with the knowledge and occasional participation of the Chicago Police Department's Internal Affairs Division.

61. Because IAD was kept abreast of the FBI investigation, City officials—including, but not limited to, the head of IAD and CPD Superintendent Philip J. Cline—were aware of credible allegations that Watts and his team were extorting and soliciting bribes from drug dealers.

62. Watts used a drug dealer named “Big Shorty” to run drugs at the Ida B. Wells complex. Big Shorty would sell the drugs, turning profits over to Watts in exchange for Watts’s protection. Watts also used drug dealers as phony informants to obtain illegitimate search warrants. Watts also offered to let arrestees go if they provided him with weapons.

63. Targets of the FBI investigation extended beyond Watts to members of Watts’s tactical team, including some of the Officer Defendants named herein.

64. During the times complained of, the FBI investigation generated evidence showing that Watts engaged in systemic extortion, theft, possession and distribution of drugs for money, planting drugs on subjects, and paying informants with drugs.

65. Investigators also determined that Watts and his subordinates had engaged in these activities for the prior ten years.

Watts and Mohammed Are Charged With Federal Crimes

66. In 2012, after at least a decade of engaging in criminal misconduct, Defendants Watts and Mohammed were caught red-handed, shaking down a person they thought was a drug courier. This individual was actually an agent for the FBI.

67. The United States government subsequently charged Watts and Mohammed with federal crimes.

68. Watts and Mohammed each pled guilty to federal criminal charges and were sentenced to terms of imprisonment. See United States v. Watts, No. 12-CR-87-1 (N.D. Ill.); United States v. Mohammed, No. 12-CR-87-2 (N.D. Ill.).

69. In its sentencing memorandum in the Watts case, the Government explained that “[f]or years . . . the defendant [Watts] used his badge and his position as a sergeant with the Chicago Police Department to shield his own criminal activity from law enforcement scrutiny.” His crimes included “stealing drug money and extorting protection payments” from the individuals he was sworn to protect and serve.

70. The government revealed that, for years, Defendants Watts and Mohammed extorted tens of thousands of dollars of bribes from individuals at the Ida B. Wells public housing complex on numerous occasions as part of their duties with the CPD.

71. During the sentencing hearing, the Government urged Judge Sharon Johnson Coleman to “consider the other criminal conduct that the defendant [Watts] engaged in throughout the course of his career as a police officer,” specifically noting that during the federal investigation Watts “did other things such as putting a false case on the confidential source that was involved in our investigation. Had him arrested on drug charges. And the source . . . felt he had no chance of successfully fighting that case so he pled guilty to a crime he didn’t commit.” The federal prosecutor wondered aloud

“how many times [Watts] might have done something similar when the government was not involved.”

72. Following the federal indictments of Watts and Mohammed, City officials made efforts to downplay magnitude of Watts’s criminal enterprise.

73. Notwithstanding the evidence that investigators had amassed over the years pointing to a wide, decade long criminal enterprise, CPD Superintendent Garry McCarthy publicly stated, “There is nobody involved other than the two officers who were arrested.” As described in more detail below, that statement was not true.

The City’s “Code of Silence”

74. While the federal government was investigating Watts and his crew, a “code of silence” existed within the Chicago Police Department.

75. Under this code, police officers are expected to conceal each other’s misconduct, in contravention of their sworn duties, and penalties for breaking the code of silence within the CPD are severe.

76. As one CPD officer has explained, “[The Chicago Police Academy told officers] over and over again we do not break the code of silence. Blue is Blue. You stick together. If something occurs on the street that you don’t think is proper, you go with the flow. And after that situation, if you have an issue with that officer or what happened, you can confront them. If you don’t feel comfortable working with them anymore, you can go to the watch commander and request a new partner. But you never break the code of silence.”

77. Pursuant to this “code of silence,” each of the Defendant Officers concealed from Mr. Allen information that Watts and his team members were, in fact, engaged in a wide-ranging pattern of misconduct. Had this information been disclosed to Mr. Allen, he would have used it to impeach the officers’ accounts, which would have changed the outcome of the criminal proceedings instituted against him.

78. Also, consistent with this “code of silence,” the few people who stood up to Watts and his crew and/or attempted to report his misconduct were either ignored or punished, and Watts and his crew continued to engage in misconduct with impunity.

The Careers of CPD Officers Daniel Echeverria and Shannon Spaulding Are Nearly Ruined

79. In 2006, two Chicago police officers, Daniel Echeverria and Shannon Spaulding, learned credible information from arrestees that Watts and his crew were engaged in illegal drug activity.

80. Officer Echeverria took the allegation seriously, and he reported it to a CPD supervisor. The supervisor made clear that he was not interested in learning about the allegation, and he directed Echeverria not to document the allegations.

81. Echeverria and Spaulding subsequently reported the allegations about Watts and his crew to the FBI. Soon thereafter, Echeverria and Spaulding began cooperating with the FBI, actively assisting the FBI's investigation of Watts and his crew.

82. When their cooperation became known to officers within their CPD chain of command, Spaulding and Echeverria were labeled "rats" within the Department, their lives were threatened, and they endured all manner of professional retaliation by members of the CPD.

83. Spaulding and Echeverria subsequently sued the City for the retaliation they suffered for blowing the whistle on Watts and his crew. On the eve of trial in that case, the City settled for $2 million.

CPD Officer Michael Spaargaren's Life is Threatened

84. Sometime in the mid-2000s, a CPD officer named Michael Spaargaren was assigned to work with Watts in public housing.

85. Spaargaren observed that Watts did not inventory drugs and money that the officers seized during arrests, and Spaargaren confronted Watts about the misconduct.

86. In response, Watts threatened to put a false case against Spaargaren and made veiled threats to kill him.

87. A CPD Lieutenant in the chain of command—James Spratte—subsequently warned Spaargaren to keep his mouth shut or his life would be in danger.

88. Fearful for his life, Spaargaren opted to take a one-and-a-half-year leave of absence from CPD rather than to continue to work under Watts.

Citizen Complaints Went Nowhere

89. Defendants Watts, Mohammed, and other members of Watts's tactical team had accumulated scores of citizen complaints concerning violations of their civil rights over the years. These complaints began well before the misconduct Defendants committed against Mr. Allen, and yet the City did nothing to stop the misconduct.

90. On information and belief, complaints that the City bothered to investigate largely boiled down a he-said-she-said between the officer and the citizen, and the City's policy was to resolve those disputes in the officers' favor, no matter how many citizens came forward with the same type of complaint.

91. The Illinois Appellate Court recently criticized the City for its utter failure to address the Watts team misconduct.

92. In multiple instances, the City actually assigned Watts to investigate complaints made against him or members of the team he supervised.

The City Turns a Blind Eye to the Clear Pattern of Alleged Misconduct that Emerged from Watts and His Crew

93. Despite all of the evidence that was amassed over the years of a pattern and practice of criminal misconduct by Defendant Officers, on information and belief, the City never undertook its own investigation of the clear pattern that emerged.

94. As City officials were aware, the purpose of the FBI investigation was to investigate and prosecute criminal activity, not to impose discipline and control of the City's Police Department.

95. Nothing about the FBI investigation relieved the City of its fundamental responsibility to supervise, discipline, and control its officers.

96. Nevertheless, the City completely abdicated this responsibility, allowing the widespread misconduct to continue undeterred throughout the FBI's criminal investigation of Watts and his crew.

97. During the FBI investigation, which spanned at least eight years, City officials had reason to believe that Watts and his crew were committing ongoing criminal activity on the streets—extorting drug dealers and framing citizens of crimes they did not commit—yet City officials took no steps to prevent these abuses from occurring.

98. Instead, City officials let officers on Watts's crew continue to pursue criminal charges against citizens like Mr. Allen and continue to testify falsely against citizens like Mr. Allen.

99. City officials withheld information they had about the officers' pattern of transgressions—information that citizens like Mr. Allen could have used to impeach the corrupt officers and defend against the bogus criminal charges brought against them.

Mr. Allen's Exoneration

100. After Defendant Watts and his crew's corruption came to light, on September 12, 2017, a group of similarly-situated innocent victims filed a Consolidated Petition for Relief From Judgment and To Vacate Convictions Pursuant to 735 ILCS 5/2-1401 (Consolidated Petition).

101. On November 16, 2017, upon the State's motion, Judge LeRoy K. Martin, Jr. vacated and nolle prosessed all of the convictions related to the Consolidated Petition.

102. In commenting on the extraordinary decision to agree to vacate all of the convictions, head of Cook County State's Attorney's Office's Conviction Integrity Unit Mark Rotert stated that "In these cases, we concluded, unfortunately, that police were not being truthful and we couldn't have confidence in the integrity of their reports and their testimony."

103. On September 24, 2018, 18 other similarly-situated innocent victims were given a semblance of justice. Upon the State's motion, Judge LeRoy K. Martin, Jr. vacated 23 convictions, including Mr. Allen's, and the State nolle prosessed all charges related to the convictions.

104. Following this decision, Mr. Rotert explained that "these arrests were purely conjured . . . [Watts and his team] were basically arresting people and framing them or were claiming they were involved in drug offenses that either didn't occur or didn't occur the way these police officers said."

105. At a press conference where she stood with the 18 exonerated men, CCSAO elected State's Attorney Kim Foxx stated that “[t]he system owes an apology to the men who stand behind us.”

106. On November 2, 2018, seven more victims had eight additional convictions voluntarily dismissed by the CCSAO.

107. In a press release, CCSAO Foxx stated that Watts and his team's “pattern of misconduct” has caused her “to lose confidence in the initial arrests and the validity of these convictions.”

108. Referring to the exonerees as “victims,” Ms. Foxx wished them “a path forward in healing and justice.”

109. As of today's date, 63 men and women have had 82 convictions dismissed due to Watts and his team's misconduct.

110. All 63 of these men and women, including Mr. Allen, have been found factually innocent of the charges and most, including Mr. Allen, have been certified innocent.

111. The CCSAO will no longer call certain members of Watts's crew as witnesses in any pending or future matters due to concerns about their credibility concerns and alleged involvement in misconduct.

112. In November 2017, the Superintendent of the Chicago Police Department, Eddie T. Johnson, placed some of the Defendant Officers named herein, along with other members of Watts's crew, on desk duty.

113. In November of 2018, Mr. Allen received a certificate of innocence for his 2004 conviction.

Mr. Allen's Damages

114. Because of the Defendants acts and omissions, Mr. Allen was subjected to police harassment and unfair criminal proceedings. Significant freedoms in multiple areas of Mr. Allen's life were limited, curtailed, or otherwise undermined due to his wrongful conviction and subsequent probation requirements. These requirements include but are not limited to: restrictions on Mr. Allen's freedom to travel and congregate, monthly reporting to a probation officer, a curfew, and random drug testing, before he was finally exonerated.

115. The emotional pain and suffering caused by being wrongfully convicted has been significant. Mr. Allen was deprived of the everyday pleasures of basic human life and his freedom was taken from him. Since then, Mr. Allen has had to live with a felony record he did not deserve.

116. As a result of the foregoing, Mr. Allen has suffered severe emotional damages, as well as physical damages, all proximately caused by Defendants' misconduct.

Count I: 42 U.S.C. § 1983 – Due Process

117. Each paragraph of this Complaint is incorporated as if restated fully herein.

118. In the manner described more fully above, Defendant Officers, while acting as investigators, individually, jointly, and in conspiracy with each other, deprived Plaintiff of his constitutional right to due process and a fair trial.

119. In the manner described more fully above, Defendant Officers deliberately withheld exculpatory evidence from Plaintiff and from state prosecutors, among others, as well as knowingly fabricated false evidence, thereby misleading and misdirecting the criminal prosecution of Plaintiff.

120. Likewise, in the manner described more fully above, Defendants Philip J. Cline, Debra Kirby, Karen Rowan and other as-yet-unidentified CPD supervisors, had knowledge of a pattern of misconduct by Watts and his team. These Defendant Supervisory Officers knew of a substantial risk that Watts and his team would violate the rights of Mr. Allen and other residents and visitors of the Ida B. Wells complex, and they deliberately chose a course of action that allowed those abuses to continue, thereby condoning those abuses.

121. The constitutional injuries complained of herein were proximately caused by the intentional misconduct of Defendant Supervisory Officers, or were proximately caused when Defendant Supervisory Officers were deliberately, recklessly indifferent to their subordinates' misconduct, knowing that turning a blind eye to that misconduct would necessarily violate Plaintiff's constitutional rights.

122. In addition, Defendant Supervisory Officers themselves concealed exculpatory evidence from Mr. Allen—specifically information about Watts and his team’s pattern of misconduct. In this way, Defendant Supervisory Officers violated Mr. Allen’s due process right to a fair trial deliberately and with reckless disregard for Mr. Allen’s rights.

123. Defendants’ misconduct directly resulted in the unjust criminal convictions of Plaintiff, thereby denying him his constitutional right to due process and a fair trial guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment. Absent this misconduct, the prosecution of Plaintiff could not and would not have been pursued.

124. The misconduct described in this Count was objectively unreasonable and was undertaken intentionally, with reckless and deliberate indifference to the rights of others, and in total disregard of the truth and of Mr. Allen’s clear innocence.

125. Defendants’ actions were taken under color of law and within the scope of their employment.

126. The City of Chicago is also directly liable for the injuries described in this Count because the City and CPD maintained official policies and customs that were the moving force behind the violation of Plaintiff’s rights and also because the actions of the final policymaking officials for Defendant City of Chicago and CPD were the moving force behind the violation of Plaintiff’s rights.

127. At all times relevant to the events described in this Complaint, and for a period of time prior thereto, Defendant City of Chicago maintained a system that violated the due process rights of criminal defendants like Mr. Allen by concealing exculpatory evidence of Chicago police officers' patterns of misconduct.

128. In addition, at all times relevant to the events described in this Complaint and for a period of time prior thereto, Defendant City of Chicago had notice of a widespread practice by its officers and agents under which criminal suspects, such as Mr. Allen, were routinely deprived of exculpatory evidence, were subjected to criminal proceedings based on false evidence, and were deprived of liberty without probable cause, such that individuals were routinely implicated in crimes to which they had no connection and for which there was scant evidence to suggest that they were involved.

129. As a matter of both policy and practice, Defendant City directly encourages, and is thereby the moving force behind, the very type of misconduct at issue here by failing to adequately train, supervise, control, and discipline its police officers, such that its failure to do so manifests deliberate indifference. Defendant City's actions lead police officers in the City of Chicago to believe that their actions will never be scrutinized and, in that way, directly encourage further abuses such as those that Mr. Allen endured.

130. The above-described widespread practices, which were so well-settled as to constitute the de facto policy of the City of Chicago, were allowed to exist because municipal policymakers with authority over the same exhibited deliberate indifference to the problem, thereby effectively ratifying it. These widespread practices were allowed to flourish because Defendant City and the CPD declined to implement sufficient policies or training, even though the need for such policies and training was obvious. Defendant City and the CPD also declined to implement any legitimate mechanism for oversight or punishment of officers, thereby leading officers to believe that they could violate citizens' constitutional rights with impunity.

131. Furthermore, the misconduct described in this Complaint was undertaken pursuant to the policy and practices of Defendant City in that the constitutional violations committed against Plaintiff were committed with the knowledge or approval of persons with final policymaking authority for the City of Chicago and the CPD, or were actually committed by persons with such final policymaking authority.

132. Indeed, municipal policymakers have long been aware of Defendant City's policy and practice of failing to properly train, monitor, investigate, and discipline misconduct by its police officers, but have failed to take action to remedy the problem.

133. For example, at a City Council hearing on September 28, 1999, in response to two high-profile unjustified police shootings, Superintendent

Terry Hillard noted the need for better in-service training on the use of force, early detection of potential problem officers, and officer accountability for the use of force.

134. In June 2000, the Chairman of the Committee on Police and Fire of the Chicago City Council submitted an official resolution recognizing that “[Chicago] police officers who do not carry out their responsibilities in a professional manner have ample reason to believe that they will not be held accountable, even in instances of egregious misconduct.”

135. In 2001, the Justice Coalition of Greater Chicago (JCGC), a coalition of more than a hundred community groups, confirmed the findings of that resolution, concluding that the CPD lacked many of the basic tools necessary to identify, monitor, punish and prevent police misconduct. The JCGC findings were presented to Mayor Daley, Superintendent Hillard, and the Chicago Police Board.

136. Despite the municipal policymakers’ knowledge of the City’s failed policies and practices to adequately train, supervise, investigate, discipline, and control its police officers, nothing was done to remedy these problems.

137. As a result, the CPD has continued to respond to complaints of police misconduct inadequately and with undue delay and continued to recommend discipline in a disproportionately small number of cases.

138. Indeed, by its own admissions, more than 99% of the time when a citizen complains that his or her civil rights were violated by police officers, the City sides with the police officer and concludes that no violation occurred.

139. Notably, Defendants Watts and his team were not the first Chicago police officers who were allowed to abuse citizens with impunity over a period of years while the City turned a blind eye.

140. For instance, in 2001, Chicago police officer Joseph Miedzianowski was convicted on federal crime charges, including racketeering and drug conspiracy. The jury found that Miedzianowski engaged in corruption for much of his 22-year police career, using street informants to shake down drug dealers and sell drugs.

141. Miedzianowski, like Defendant Officers in this case, had accumulated scores of complaints over the years. As the Appellate Court has stated, the Defendant City “did nothing to slow down the criminals. Instead, it informed the corrupt officers about the complaint and named the source,” while ignoring evidence to the contrary. The Defendant City deemed such complaints unfounded or not sustained.

142. Likewise, in 2011, Chicago police officer Jerome Finnigan was convicted and sentenced on federal criminal charges, including a charge of attempting to hire someone to kill a police officer who Finnigan believed would be a witness against him on his own corruption charges in state court.

143. Finnigan was part of a group of officers in Defendant City's Special Operations Section who carried out robberies, home invasions, unlawful searches and seizures, and other crimes.

144. Finnigan and his crew engaged in their misconduct at about the same time that Mr. Allen was targeted by Defendant Watts and his crew.

145. Finnigan, like Defendant Officers in this case, had accumulated scores of citizen complaints over the years, which Defendant City routinely deemed unfounded or not sustained.

146. At his sentencing hearing in 2011, Finnigan stated, "You know, my bosses knew what I was doing out there, and it went on and on. And this wasn't the exception to the rule. This was the rule."

147. In the case of Klipfel v. Bentsen, No. 94-cv-6415 (N.D. Ill), a federal jury found that, as of 1994, the CPD maintained a code of silence that facilitated misconduct committed by Miedzianowski.

148. Likewise, in the case of Obrycka v. City of Chicago et al., No. 07 CV 2372 (N.D. Ill.), a jury found that as of February 2007 "the City [of Chicago] had a widespread custom and/or practice of failing to investigate and/or discipline its officers and/or code of silence."

149. The same constitutionally-defective oversight system in place during the time periods at issue in the Klipfel case and in the Obrycka case were also in place in during the times complained of herein.

150. The same code of silence in place at the CPD during the time periods at issue in the Klipfel case and in the Obrycka case were also in place during the times complained of herein.

151. Indeed, the problems found to exist by the jury in Klipfel and Obrycka continue to this day. In December 2015, Mayor Rahm Emanuel acknowledged that a “code of silence” exists within the Chicago Police Department that encourages cover-ups of police misconduct, and that the City’s attempts to deal with police abuse and corruption have never been adequate.

152. The policies, practices, and customs set forth above were the moving force behind the constitutional violations in this case and directly and proximately caused Plaintiff to suffer the grievous and permanent injuries and damages set forth above.

153. Defendant City’s investigation of complaints is characterized by unreasonably long delays, despite the relatively straight-forward nature of many misconduct claims.

154. Although Defendant City has long been aware that its supervision, training, and discipline of police officers is entirely inadequate, it has not enacted any substantive measures to address that deficiency.

155. Instead, Defendant City continues to inadequately investigate citizen complaints and fails to take action against officers when such action is necessary. It has also failed to modify its officer training programs to reduce misconduct against Chicago residents or to implement a system to identify and track repeat offenders, districts, or units.
